Unfocussedby James Bragg

A collection of real photographs with no computer special effects, except cropping. This is how they came. Are these accidents or planned? Does it matter? Do you want to know what the original sight was? Some of them I can't even remember what I was pointing at! Does the world need to be ordered, to be worked out? Can it just be experienced and lived? Both have their part in life and different characters tend towards different sides.
